Interjections and Direct Address
Interjections and direct address are elements that are not necessarily required to make meaning; however, they do add a touch of style that indicates a certain tone. You should use these types of elements sparingly.

Interjections:
Holy cow, he lost the bet.
Good grief, you handled that will.

Direct Address:
You, my friend, are out of your mind.
Remember, students, the final is tomorrow.